

1. Underline the relative clause in each of these sentences.

- a) Jamie, whose mother had forbidden him to enter the forest, quickly rode his bike home.
- b) Tomorrow morning, when the sun is rising, we will head out on our hike.
- c) Georgia, with her brother Tom, played in the swimming pool all afternoon.

2. Tick to indicate whether these sentences include relative clauses or not.

Sentences	Relative clause	No relative clause
I've just read The Hobbit, which was written by J.R.R. Tolkien.
Where are you going on holiday this year?
My friend, whose name is Simon, is petrified of scary films.
When will arrive at the party?

3. Convert each pair of sentences into one sentence, making sure you use the relative pronoun indicated in the brackets.

- a) Buckingham Palace is in London. The Queen lives there. (where)

- b) At 12.30pm it is time for lunch. The bell rings. (when)

- c) Jason loves football. He is my next door neighbour. (who)

4. Insert an appropriate relative clause into these sentences.

- a) In 2004, when _____, I was four years old.
- b) My father, whose _____, is a mechanic.
- c) Jubilee Grove, where _____, is the road next to mine.

Challenge!

For each of these sentences, circle the correct relative pronoun.

Whose or who's? Take care! Who's is a contraction for who is or who has.

- a) Charles Dickens, (whose/ who's) a famous English author, was born in Portsmouth.
- b) Jenny, (whose/ who's) dad owns a local restaurant, invited us over for dinner.
- c) My baby brother, (whose/ who's) just turned five, is having a party at the weekend
- d) Francis, (whose/ who's) favourite lesson is PE, is my best friend.

1. Underline the relative clause in each of these sentences.

- a) Jamie, whose mother had forbidden him to enter the forest, quickly rode his bike home.
- b) Tomorrow morning, when the sun is rising, we will head out on our hike.
- c) Georgia, with her brother Tom, played in the swimming pool all afternoon.

2. Tick to indicate whether these sentences include relative clauses or not.

Sentences	Relative clause	No relative clause
I've just read The Hobbit, which was written by J.R.R. Tolkien.	<input type="radio"/>
Where are you going on holiday this year?		<input type="radio"/>
My friend, whose name is Simon, is petrified of scary films.	<input type="radio"/>
When will arrive at the party?		<input type="radio"/>

3. Convert each pair of sentences into one sentence, making sure you use the relative pronoun indicated in the brackets.

- a) Buckingham Palace is in London. The Queen lives there. (where)

Buckingham Palace, where the Queen lives, is in London.

- b) At 12.30pm it is time for lunch. The bell rings. (when)

At 12.30pm, when the bell rings, it is time for lunch.

- c) Jason loves football. He is my next door neighbour. (who)

Jason, who is my next door neighbour, loves football.

4. Insert an appropriate relative clause into these sentences.

Examples are shown below. Answers may vary.

a) In 2004, when my brother was born, I was four years old.

b) My father, whose name is Jason, is a mechanic.

c) Jubilee Grove, where my best friend lives, is the road next to mine.

Challenge!

For each of these sentences, circle the correct relative pronoun.

Whose or who's? Take care! Who's is a contraction for who is or who has.

a) Charles Dickens, (whose/ who's) a famous English author, was born in Portsmouth.

b) Jenny, (whose/ who's) dad owns a local restaurant, invited us over for dinner.

c) My baby brother, (whose/ who's) just turned five, is having a party at the weekend

d) Francis, (whose/ who's) favourite lesson is PE, is my best friend.

